

Stan Davis has worked for human rights since the 1960s. As a social worker, school counselor, and a child and family therapist, he has trained Child Protective Workers, worked with abused and grieving children, designed and implemented training for a network of rape crisis centers, and helped law enforcement develop effective interventions for domestic abuse. Since the mid-1990s Stan has put his energies toward helping schools prevent bullying. He has trained schools all over the United States. His strategies are part of state-wide initiatives in Michigan, New Jersey, and West Virginia. Stan's work was featured in national newspaper and radio articles and on a special 20/20 report on bullying with John Stossel. He is the author of the www.stopbullyingnow.com web site and the 2004 book, "Schools Where Everyone Belongs: Practical Strategies to Reduce Bullying."